FBA ART SHOW, MARCH 3rd

Following last April's smashing success, the Foggy Bottom Association is holding its Second Annual Left Bank Art Show and Wine Tasting Event. It will take place on Saturday, March 3rd, from 1 to 6 PM at St. Stephen's Parish Hall, corner of 25th Street and Pennsylvania Avenue.

Artists, craftsmen and photographers, amateur and professional, are invited to display (and sell) their wares. Also welcome are delicious edibles. Display space is limited, so call early to reserve yours! Telephone Dennis Williams at 735-1551 during business hours.

NOTE OF THANKS

St. Stephen Martyr Ladies of Charity with to thank all the Foggy Bottom residents for their patronage and contributions for our Bazaar and Bake Sale. We were especially impressed by the number of young people who brought delicious, as well as decorated, baked goods. Through your cooperation we can continue to give assistance to those of our neighbors and others in temporary distress. A great big thanks to you.

LAST MONDAY

The monthly Foggy Bottom Association meeting is NOT held on the fourth Monday of the month - it is held on the LAST Monday of the month.

New Schedule at G.W. CONTINUING EDUCATION FOR WOMEN

Beginning January 30 Dr. Marguerite Rawalt, a practicing attorney, will teach a course in Sex Discrimination in the Law. Dr. Rawalt represented women in the three first suits testing discriminatory practices violative of Title VII of the 1964 Civil Rights Act. She also served on President Kennedy's Commission on the Status of Women, 1961-1963, and on the Citizens Advisory Council on the Status of Women. Sex Discrimination in the Law will be offered at 2029 K Street, N.W.

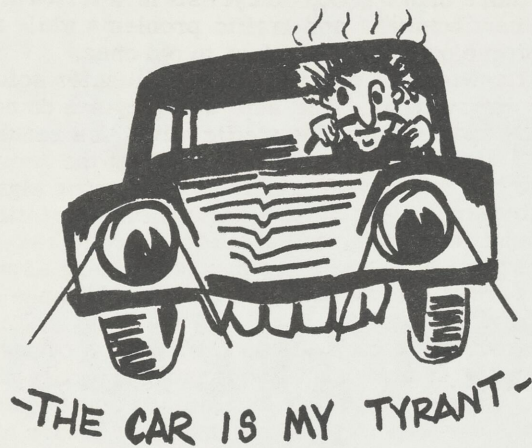

Elizabeth Rowe, Vice Chairman of the Committee of 100 on the Federal City, will teach a course on Washington, Then and Now. The course examines Washington's historical development and its dual role of National Capital and home town. Mrs. Rowe was Chairman of the National Capital Planning Commission from 1961 to 1968, and served on Mrs. Johnson's Committee for a More Beautiful Nation's Capital, 1965-1969. Washington Then and Now will be offered at The Arts Club of Washington, 2017 I Street, N.W.

Other courses offered at locations within the District are: Career Development for Employed Women; Foundations of Editorial Work: How to Study (beginning January 14); Math Refresher; A Workshop in Employee Training and Supervision; Painting and Sculpture in Spain; and Developing New Horizons for Women, a group guidance and counseling course.

Registration for these and other courses taught at locations in Maryland and Virginia can be made by calling the office of Continuing Education for Women at George Washington University, telephone 676-7036.

The car is my tyrant; I can not breathe.
 It maketh me to drive on hot asphalt;
 It leadeth me past the full parking-lots;
 It rattleth my soul;
 It leadeth me in the paths of destruction for Detroit's sake.
 Yea, when I drive on the highway in the shadow of death
 I will fear much evil: my car is with me;
 Its cost and exhaust they madden me;
 It prepareth monoxide before me in the presence of repair bills
 It filleth my lungs with pollution; my eyes runneth over.
 Surely smog and congestion will follow me all the days of my life
 And I will dwell in the chaos of cars forever.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

December 6 1972

Board of Zoning Appeals
 District Building
 Washington, DC 20004

Re Appeal 11211
 12/13 9 a.m.
 No. 733 et seq 24th St
 No. 2312 et seq H St
 Lots 42 & 839 Square 42

Please record this protest to the above rezoning.

A Metro station is under construction one block from this site. And just one block away is a huge eight-story parking garage built by this same applicant earlier this year, and involving bulldozing dozens of homes and small businesses.

Washington may need parking lots. But more than parking lots it needs people. George Washington University has demonstrated its contempt for the rights of others by wholesale destruction of homes and businesses. Witness the demolition of an entire city block from H street to Pennsylvania avenue and 19th to 20th. For education? No, for an office building, on a 30-year lease to PEPCO. And, the District tax assessor advises, this property is tax exempt, and the load thrown on other citizens.

Drive around the west end area. View the myriad parking lots GW now has. All tax exempt. And every last one involving destruction of once fine homes. And every one adding more and more to the air pollution and traffic clutter.

So certain is this big business, under the guise of education, of getting its way from our zoning authorities, that now it bulldozes first; asks for zoning later -- as in the instant case.

AMERICA REDISCOVERS THE BICYCLE

This country is currently experiencing a phenomenal renaissance of interest in the bicycle. Especially is this true among our adults.

Historically, cycling was a popular pastime for many grownups prior to the turn of the century. However, the activity lost its fascination after the advent of the Model T. From then on till the mid-60's, it became generally a childhood interest. Now, in spite of, and possibly because of, the automobile the nation is turning once again to this two-wheeled muscle-powered form of locomotion and loving it.

Cyclists out to prove a point rode their bicycles to work, pitting their travel time against that of the auto and the bus. They rode through congested downtown streets during peak traffic hours and succeeded in showing that the bicycle was able to move faster between home and office in heavy traffic than was the bus or the family car. It was an exhilarating experience to discover for themselves that astride a bike they could move along while all the other vehicles could only stagnate.

Now, overnight, it seems every adult American under 60 wants to ride a bicycle. Bicycles are now to be seen everywhere. Dealers cannot keep up with the increasing demand.

Public and private agencies are now beginning to give their attention to the growing political demands of this new cycling element among the electorate. At first shrugged off as a passing fad, the overwhelming move to the bicycle as a viable mode of transportation has belatedly convinced those in position of authority that the bike is here to stay and must be taken seriously.

The more than 65,000,000 cyclists in America are creating new business and traffic problems while at the same time providing solutions to old ones.

Traffic-wise the problems are calling for solutions on every hand. The auto and bicycles do not provide the most compatible traffic mix. As a result, parks and highway departments throughout the nation are turning to marked off bike lanes and traffic signs on the city streets and bicycle paths through existing parks, along waterways, and parallel to many highways.

Systems of bike trails are now being designed and built to permit the cyclist to take full advantage of his newfound mobility.

A person on a bicycle has far more opportunity for observing nature at close hand than does the motorist. As a result, many cyclists are now becoming more conscious of pollution than ever before and are demanding the cleanup and restoration of the streams and parkways along which they pedal. Despoiled nature is now receiving attention where before it went unnoticed.

Locally, the Washington Metropolitan Council of Governments (COG) has taken an interest in the matter and has prepared a set of standards and guidelines for the design, use, and management of recreation trails.

The Washington Metropolitan Area Transit Authority is making a plea for bicycle transportation to and from projected transit stations.

The Bureau of Outdoor Recreation (BOR) has recommended twenty-five miles of bicycling trails for each community of 50,000 residents to provide more safety for the cyclist.

The Department of Transportation (DOT) has informed the states that money from the highway trust fund can be used for the construction of bicycle paths in conjunction with Federally funded highway projects. That means 90% Federal financing (10% State) for bike trails along inter-state highways. In making this determination, John Volpe, Secretary of Transportation, has been quoted as saying, "I don't consider bicycles a gimmick or a fad. As far as I am concerned, bikes have equal rights with automobiles on our city streets."

In the District of Columbia, the Smithsonian Plan calls for setting up a series of bicycle arteries that will permit the bicycle to take its place alongside the auto.

The National Park Service has already built a bike path alongside of Rock Creek Drive through the park, providing a safe route for the commuting cyclist on his way to work.

Many downtown parking establishments have now added bicycle parking to their service and Hertz is now offering Rent-a-Bike service in certain cities.

This phenomenon is one of the most encouraging ecological developments which we have yet seen. It gives great promise for the future in reduction of air pollution. It promises, too, a general improvement in the health of our citizens along with a rise in the quality of the environment. Viva la bike!

Foggy Doings

Something new has been added at Marg-Ann Beauty Salon. GLADYS GILLIAM, who always keeps the outside of her building so beautifully, has added some new pretties inside. New dryers with comfy "bucket" seats, new chairs, and new fixtures all around. They not only look good, but their smaller scale adds a lot of room to the shop.

Holiday decorations were still up when I was there, and they are put up by Marg-Ann customers at a traditional Christmas party. It is evidently a gala affair, with customers providing holiday food to go along with refreshments and decorations.

The holidays brought a bad fall and a broken hip to Potomac House's MADELINE PAUL. According to reports, she was walking a bit the day after surgery, which is good news indeed. Our best wishes for a speedy recovery.

There were many nice Christmas decorations in the Bottom this year, and we hope the practice continues and grows. One particularly nice tree was in front of 1010 - 20th Street.

Correction: The new owner of Harriet Gruger's house is not Bob Keith, but MRS. CLAUDINE DAY, known as Nicky to her friends. Mrs. Day will become a Foggy Bottom resident in late January, and comes "well recommended." She will be living just a few doors from her aunt, Irene Parsons, FBA Executive Board member and longtime Eye Street resident.

Soupc'on *

by Dorth Arnold

The Swedes have a soup which is hearty enough to set before their King. In fact, it is true that all Swedes from the King on down eat Erwtensoepe (Pea Soup) every Thursday night throughout their long, cold winter. This is an economical dinner, but its international flavor makes it party fare.

*Pea Soup (Erwtensoepe)
Hot Cornbread sticks
*Swedish Pancake (Ungspankake)
Coffee

*Pea Soup

Soak 2 cups of dried, green split peas overnight in cold water to cover. Drain the peas and put in a kettle with a ham bone and a couple of smoked ham hocks. Add one bay leaf. Cover with water and simmer for about two hours. Remove the bone and hocks and cut the meat from them and add to soup. Then add four finely chopped leeks, 1/4 t. nutmeg and salt and pepper to taste. Cover and simmer for 30 min.

*Swedish Pancake

Put 1 cup of flour, 2T sugar, 1/4 t. salt in a bowl. Beat 3 eggs well, add 3 cups of milk and mix. Slowly stir the liquid into the flour. Get out all the lumps.

Heat the oven to 500 degrees. Yes, 500 is correct! Heat a 9x13 inch pan with 3 T. butter. Pour the pancake mix into the pan. Bake it until it is puffed up and golden brown. Cut it into squares and serve with lingonberries. Skaal!

FILM NOTES

Pedases Acquire Dupont Theater

By Gary Arnold

The Dupont Theater has been acquired from the K-B chain by Ted and Jim Pedas, who own and operate the Circle, Inner Circle and Outer Circle theaters. The Pedases are supervising renovations of the house, which they plan to rename the Dupont Circle. They assume booking responsibilities after the first of the year.

Under the Pedases the theater will alternate between revivals and first-run art-house product, with occasional "day-and-date" bookings in which a feature plays at both the Dupont Circle and one of the Outer Circle units. Among the attractions already earmarked for the Dupont Circle are the American theatrical premiere of the German vampire movie "Jonathan," a retrospective of Samuel Goldwyn films, and the local premiere of Robert Bresson's "Four Nights of a Dreamer." Bernardo Bertolucci's "The Spider Stragem" and the Peruvian film "The Green Wall."

WHERE THERE'S SMOKE THERE MAY BE LAW BREAKING

Beginning last February 7th we are protected against use of incinerators unless they meet city standards (and few do). This is one time we can help clean up our air—if you see an incinerator stack smoking, telephone the Bureau of Air and Water Quality Control, 629-3748, give them the address of the building and give them also your name and address and ask them to tell you what they found during their inspection and what action they have taken.

If you don't hear from them within two weeks, telephone them again. Call them sooner if the incinerator stack continues to smoke. The bureau is really interested in stopping violations. The telephone number again is 629-3748.

Many of the thousands of Americans who die each year of a coronary before age 65 lived their way into premature heart attack. By habit or choice and over a period of many years, they had run certain risks that raised their chances of being stricken. Call the Washington Heart Association (296-4697) and ask for a free copy of the pamphlet titled "Reduce Your Risk of Heart Attack". Learn the risks and avoid them.

* * *

Recent medical studies have shown that, because of their eating habits, many young men and teen-age boys in America tend to have blood cholesterol levels similar to those of men in their 40's and 50's in areas of the world where coronary heart disease is rare. "Healthy Eating for Teenagers," a free pamphlet available through the Washington Heart Association (296-4697, tells how teenagers, both boys and girls, can reduce their risk of heart disease in later years by adopting healthy dietary practices now.

Know These Warnings

Symptoms vary... but these are the usual warnings of heart attack:

- Prolonged, oppressive pain or unusual discomfort in the center of chest, behind the breastbone.
- Pain may radiate to the shoulder, arm, neck or jaw.
- The pain or discomfort is often accompanied by sweating. Nausea, vomiting and shortness of breath may also occur.
- Sometimes these symptoms subside and then return.

Minutes count when heart attack strikes. Act promptly. Delay may cost your life.
